RIDDLE OF THE RIFT OF DEPOT 613 SOON TO BE SOLVED!

VISCOUNT BELLIENT NEVER

News of the Realms

Viscount Never Declared Dead Acheron, Pandemonium

While the machinations of the Clockwork Empire are never-ending, the news out of Acheron that the Viscount of Never has mysteriously disappeared and been declared dead for the second time in under a year is certainly worth reporting.

After being missing for over a cycle, the Viscount Bartholomew Never was declared dead by the Imperial Court of Peerage on the 136th of last year. His eldest son, Byron, assumed the title. Less a year later, the younger Never has also disappeared and been declared dead by the Court.

The elder Never's remaining child, Bellicent, petitioned the Court requesting an emergency declaration to allow her to assume the title.

Renowned for their radical experiments, the House of Never is now under scrutiny by the Society of Technomancers to determine what manner of malfeasance by the rogue scientist might explain the disappearances.

Faust Heads for the Mountains

Guild Team Arrives and Strikes into the Mountains North of the Depot Depot 613, Nox

First sighted from the southbound train on the Northern Railway on the 23rd, a mysterious rift has formed over the mountains south of the Creed House along the line. Speculation has run wild since it first appeared and only grew after the regularly scheduled train from DredgeTown carried no passengers only two days later.

A Guild exploratory team led by renowned technomancer Frederick Faust arrived in Depot 613 on the 42nd and was ready to depart as soon as the weather cleared after the eclipse.

The expedition should have reached the area near the rift no later than the 48th and we expect the truth within days.
